BREEDING GRAIN FOR ALASKA AT COLORADO POINT

An odd plan is on foot to make the Colorado mountains a sort of proving ground for agriculture in Alaska. Of course there are a good many kinds of agriculture in Alaska that do not need proving. They are already an established success, both scientifically and commercially. Hundreds of tons of potatoes, oats and cabbage are grown and sold in the territory each year and there are a dozen other successful crops.

But Alaskan nights are too cool to mature string beans and corn, for instance, and the question is whether hard, cold-resistant varieties could not be produced by selective breeding that would give Alaskans all the fresh luxuries from their garden that "the states" have.

There are farms in the Colorado mountains near Denver that have an elevation of nearly 10,000 feet and the conditions at this altitude in Colorado are almost identical with conditions at 1000 feet elevation near the Arctic Circle. That is, the days are warm and sunny but the nights are always cold even in summer, while the severe winters are apt to kill all but the hardiest perennials—plants that have been brought up to that sort of thing.

A bill was recently introduced into congress for the establishment of just such work in Colorado and also for experiments that would breed drought resistant vegetables for the desert.

The methods employed in this experimental work are exceedingly interesting. If, for instance, it was decided to find a wheat that would mature in a very cold climate like that in the hill country north of the Arctic Circle, this is how it would be done:

First, the hardest seed of all the hardest varieties would be obtained from Russia, Scandinavia, Canada and Alaska. Then it would be planted in a place where it would be likely to mature. There might be just one stalk that, from some mysterious strain of breeding or force of circumstance, would stand unharmed by the autumn frosts. Its seed would be treasured and the next year each grain would be carefully planted and guarded so that the strain should be increased, and still further and severer tests made on it until it was so hardened that a full annual crop was assured.

With such a wheat developed there are hundreds of thousands of fertile acres in the Alaskan valleys that might be farmed to help feed the world. The same is true of many other staple cereals and vegetables for which the markets of the world are calling.

And some of these important problems may soon be in course of solution on a western mountain-top.

WINNEMUCCA IS REAL LIVE TOWN

MANY PEOPLE ARE COMING IN AND ROOM SEEMS TO BE STARTED.

With the opening of spring the streets of Winnemucca are again assuming the lively aspect that characterized the town last summer when it was one of the busiest places in the state.

Many people, says the Star, are coming in and are looking for locations, while others are rushing on to the different mining camps that are adjacent to the town and the hotels and rooming houses are being taxed to capacity.

Winnemucca surely has a bright outlook for the coming summer from a business standpoint. Not only are people being attracted here by the great mineral resources of the county, but great attention is being shown to the agricultural resources as well.

Northern Humboldt has some of the best agricultural valleys in the state, dotted with beautiful ranches, where there is an abundance of water for irrigation purposes and the ranges are noted for the fine stock raised in this section. That is not all, for another class of farmers are coming in and the vacant land that a few years ago was thought to be worthless is being taken up and homes are taking the place of what looked to be a barren waste of sagebrush land.

This change is not taking place in any particular section, but is spreading from one end of the county to the other. The Quinn River valley has already quite a large population of so-called dry farmers, who have established good substantial homes on their tracts of land. Another section at Winnemucca's very doors is Grass valley, only five or six miles south of here. The vacant lands of this particular section are rapidly being located and there is considerable of a settlement of people there now, all good citizens and people who have come to stay and reap the benefits of Nevada soil.

Pleasant valley, further south, is a very desirable locality, with rich loamy soil and is not only well adapted to dry farming but an abundance of water can be procured there from wells. The Buena Vista valley and the valley of the Humboldt are other sections that are receiving attention and large acreages of land are being taken up for homes.

SMUGGLER GETS SIX MONTHS IN PRISON

LOS ANGELES, March 24.—Sam Wing, said to be one of the cleverest opium smugglers captured in years, yesterday pleaded guilty in the United States district court. Judge Wellborn sentenced him to six months in jail.

Wing's method was to pack the opium in fish boxes and ship it express from Oceanside, his headquarters, to Los Angeles. Here it was received by two agents in Chinatown, who are now under arrest, and sold to local Orientals. A box containing several hundred dollars' worth of the contraband drug was broken open during transportation and his arrest followed.

DAMAGE BY FLOODS IN SOUTHEASTERN NEVADA

The recent flood did a great deal of damage in the Moapa valley by the waters from the Muddy valley and the drainage from Pahrana-gat joining and inundating many of the farms. Exact details or estimates are indefinite, but it is said the damage is such that the melon crop will be retarded. In spite of this disaster it is expected that close to 200 cars of melons will be shipped this year if the acreage planted is successful. — Caliente Prospector.

TO INCREASE OUTPUT OF TUNGSTEN MINES

E. L. Fletcher, formerly of Tonopah, manager, and George H. Lindsay, accountant for the United States Tungsten corporation, left by stage yesterday morning for the mines at the Hub, where they will remain for some time before making another visit to Ely.

Mr. Fletcher expects to increase the output of concentrates from the mill very soon, as a larger supply of water will soon be available and another shift will be put to work. Up to this time the mill has been running but one shift a day and doubling of the time it will be operated will result in more than doubling the output.

Another load of concentrates were delivered at the Nevada Northern freight depot yesterday where about fifteen tons are now on hand. A shipment will be made as soon as the quantity for a minimum carload—twenty tons—is accumulated which will be in a very short time. — Ely Expositor.

AN AGED WOMAN ROUTES TWO MEN

LOS ANGELES, March 24.—Discovering two men whom she believed to be burglars in the basement of her home, Mrs. C. F. Ramsey, an aged woman, fired two shots at the intruders. The supposed burglars dashed from the basement and sought safety in flight.

Being unable to give pursuit, Mrs. Ramsey sent another bullet after the fleeing pair. The shooting attracted the neighbors and an alarm was telephoned to the University police station. Motorcycle Officer Shafer and several patrolmen were hurried to the scene and searched the neighborhood, but no trace of the men was found.

MOTHER SAVES HER SON FROM PRISON

LOS ANGELES, March 24.—A mother's plea for leniency saved Monte House, a chauffeur, from going to jail for ten days on a charge of speeding. Police Judge Rose, after giving House a reprimand and warning, imposed the jail sentence and then suspended execution. The boy's mother pleaded for leniency because she said he was her only support.

H. P. Zumwalt, another automobilist, also escaped a jail term by paying a fine of $25. Motorcycle officers testified that he was going 37 miles an hour when arrested.

Howard Allen, J. Lucas and M. E. Malloy were fined $25 each on speed charges.

AUTO PARTY ESCAPES THREE ROBBERS' BULLETS

SAN BERNARDINO, March 24.—Defying three masked highwaymen who sent a shower of bullets in their wake, Joe Cohn, of this city, and party of friends, saved their valuables while returning from Long Beach last night.

A bullet punctured the tire of a rear wheel, but Cohn never checked speed and when the car reached Pomona the rim was ruined. The occupants of the car boarded the eastbound overland for the remainder of the journey.

TO PROBE GOOD ROADS.

LOS ANGELES, March 24.—More than fifty good road foremen, employed on the county system of good roads, will appear before the grand jury next Monday. The summons was issued verbally yesterday. The purpose of the probe was not stated, although the secretary of the grand jury suggested that the foremen be instructed to appear in a body and bring with them data of their work for the past year.
